- When the king has the lake drained, two fire-breathing dragons emerge and battle each other in the sky. The red dragon is victorious and the white dragon is killed.
- King Vortigern thinks Merlin's blood has the power and strength to make his tower stand, but Merlin tells him that there are dragons trapped under the ground.
- Merlin has a nightmare and talks of dragons in his sleep. He later has another vision of fire burning through the land.
- Merlin travels with the knights to King Vortigern's castle.
- Merlin eats with some of the king's slaves, who keep attempting to build a tower for the King but rumblings from the ground keep causing it to collapse.
- King Vortigern's men come to the village in search of Merlin. A hooded man takes him away on his horse.
- Merlin tries to run away from the king's men but gets caught.
- The hooded man declares that Merlin will go to Avalon, to learn from the druids.
- Merlin explains to the King that the white dragon represents his enemies and that they will eventually win the war against them.
- Merlin tells the King that a boy called Arthur Pendragon is destined to become the next King of Britons and he will win the war against the Saxons.
